Early Days at Point Richmond

A LETTER FROM MR. SOITO

One of the great pleasures of running a newspaper is that you get to know people you otherwise would have no contact with. We recently received a subscription from Mr. Henry Soito of San Pablo, and wondered why a person from San Pablo would want a Point Counterpoint subscription. The mystery was solved a few weeks later when we received a letter from Mr. Soito, which we are pleased to pass on to you here:

"Dear Jeanne:

I thought you ought to know that I am not by birth or residence a Point Richmondite, but by other ties. My grandfather first settled in Point Richmond (the Potrero as it was then known). His name was Joseph Francis Mathos. He leased the land and ran cattle. His home was in the area of the present office section. My mother was born in that house. Dr. Tewksbury was the landlord and the doctor who brought her into the world. Somewhere among my mementos I have a picture of the old doc. In those days he took acreage for fees instead of chickens and eggs. He acquired much land this way and his name is on land holdings and streets.

You might want to publish the story I enclose. I wrote it quite a few years ago. The priest from Our Lady of Mercy was named Collins. The minister from the Episcopal Church was Hedley. He was rector of Trinity Church. The Doc. was J.C. Campbell. Both Collins and Campbell died many years ago. I met Hedley many years ago. He was Chaplain Emeritus of Mill's College.

I married one of the Bernardi girls. She passed away some five years ago. Some of her family still live at the Point.

If you have the small safe in the vault (ed. note: the vault in the former Bank of Richmond, now Sherry & Bob's) I have remembered the combination after all these years. The bank's telephone was 72 and mine was 372. I hope to have someone drive

THE THREE FRIENDS

by Henry C. Soito

The development of downtown Richmond from 1916 to 1923 took away the leadership of the Point Richmond area in matters pertaining to business, the professions, and spiritual guidance. However, Point Richmond in that era was still rich in that some of the finest people the Old Timer ever knew lived at the Point.

The Old Timer was then young and employed as a teller in what was known as the Bank of Richmond. This bank was located on the southwest corner of Richmond and Washington Avenues, with the entrance cut diagonally at the corner. The teller's window faced out through the entrance giving the teller a perfect view of the corner. The corner in those days was the meeting place of all Point Richmonditers who might be abroad shopping or just sauntering about.

The three friends of this story (who will remain nameless) were the venerable pastor of Our Lady of Mercy Church, the young and somewhat high church minister of the Episcopal Church, and an old doctor. The three were very fond of each other and had formed a daily weekday habit of meeting at the entrance of the bank and proceeding to the post office for their mail. The doctor always arrived as the bank opened at ten o'clock. He would look up Washington Avenue and west on Richmond Avenue to see if his friends were on their way. He would then enter the bank, poke his head through the teller's window and check his watch with the wall clock in the bank. He would then step out on the sidewalk and pace violently back and forth until the other two would appear. On their arrival, the doctor would chide his friends for their slowness. This procedure was followed day after day for several years until the transfer of the padre and the minister broke up the association.

The three would stand outside of the bank for perhaps an hour and then proceed gesticulating to the Post Office. They argued on every subject, but mostly about religion. The doctor, although a Christian, would always pose as a man of science. The Episcopalian minister, a very serious young man, was fond of discussing the Real Presence. He had a wierd theory about the Consecration in that if you believed in transsubstantiation, the bread and wine was truly changed into the Body and Blood of Christ, but if you did not believe nothing happened. This subject was real "meat" for the Padre and the doctor from their points of view.

As the work of the teller was light on these mornings, the Old Timer thoroughly enjoyed listening to the three each morning. The three were "characters" in the modern use of the phrase, but they were typical of fine people the Old Timer knew and loved in Old Point Richmond. The years spent at the Point and the people he knew there will always be cherished by him.

WE REMEMBER CHARLIE

Charlie Wright - the man known to many in the Point as "Indian Charlie" died the morning of September 9, 1975 in the Veterans Hospital in Martinez.

Of Charlie one of his friends said, "He was all our yesterdays. He was a bastard, a priest, a son-of-a-bitch, a father, a good guy and a good drinker. Charlie was a hero."

Charlie Wright was about 54 years old when he passed away. He was a Chippewa Indian, born in Chinock, Montana. He was a roofer, a mechanic and a master of all trades.

Charlie was a member of the 5307th Composite Unit - otherwise known as "Merrill's Marauders", which fought behind the Japanese lines in Burma. Of this group of soldiers, Louis Snyder says in the book, THE WAR,

"A conglomeration of tough jungle fighters, Merrill's Marauders had a specific mission: While Stilwell's Chinese troops held the Japanese in position in the hill country to the northland west of Myitkyina, the Marauders sliced around the enemy's flanks and set up road blocks in the rear. They fought a succession of small but savage actions. Their daily fare turned out to be ambushes and forced marches. Even more dangerous than Japanese bullets were the typhus, malaria and dysentery.

Throughout the year 1943 the guerrillas led by Wingate and Merrill ranged far and wide behind the enemy lines. It was small-scale but effective fighting, which kept the Japanese off balance and prevented them from moving into India. Operating in units of a thousand men and supplied by air, they crossed mountain ranges, pushed through the deep valleys, and avoided being caught in force by the enemy. They severed enemy communications lines running north and south in the valleys of the Irrawaddy, Chindwin and Salween rivers, as well as the north-south railway from Myitkyina to Mandalay...."

When Charlie stopped to consider the brutality of what he had experienced, he would sometimes stay in his room at 149 West Richmond for days at a time. Then his drinking buddies knew to leave him alone, because he was thinking about the war.

Charlie's body will be taken back to Montana by his daughter for a military funeral.

PARK DISTRICT SPONSORS PHOTOGRAPHY CONTEST

Three widely known professional photographers will be seeing the most lovely lands and waters of the East Bay through the camera lenses of amateurs when they judge the East Bay RPD's current "Parklands in Pictures" contest.

The judges for awards of $225 in gift certificates from local camera firms and nearly 50 books showing outstanding nature and scenic photography will be Rachel Lamoreux of Fremont, Charles Huppe of Piedmont and Herb Mitchell of Walnut Creek.

The competition goes on all through September, allowing for shooting of autumn changes in any of the 29 EBRPD parks, recreation areas and shorelines of Alameda and Contra Costa Counties.

Details of the many categories open for photo submission in both Junior (16 years and under) and Senior Divisions and copies of the official entry forms may be obtained from Cromwell at phone 471-4967 or 8000 Patterson Ranch Road, Fremont, or at the Park District headquarters, 11500 Skyline Blvd. Oakland 94619 or phone 531-9300.

TORNADO NATIONALS AT THE RICHMOND YACHT CLUB

As this newspaper goes on the stands (hopefully) on the 15th, the Tornado Nationals are starting at the Richmond Yacht Club. They will continue through the 19th. The Tornado sailboat is a very fast catamaran (two hulls) and is not the kind of boat you would take out for family sailing on a Sunday afternoon. Jim Dewitt explains that the crew is connected by a trapeze to balance the boat. If it tips over it is next to impossible to get back up without extra assistance. He said you have to jump out and swim down to the top of the mast and try to prevent the boat from turning all the way upside down. We're looking forward to hanging around out there this weekend to catch some of the action.

The Planning Commission passed a resolution to permit a twin townhouse (duplex) to be built in Brickyard Cove. The owner is M.P. Bury and the houses are valued at $44,000 and $39,000.

A building permit was issued to David MacDiarmid September 5, 1975 to build a single family dwelling at 355 Golden Gate Ave. The cost of construction is estimated to be $35,000.

Roni Roselius is going to Quincy to become part-owner of the Mountain Momma Ice Cream Parlor. As Roni tells it, "Quincy was out of my way on a recent mountain trip, but some instinct drove me there. I was walking down the street when I suddenly felt that when I turned the corner something would be there for me. So I turned the corner and there was Mountain Momma's and they needed a part owner."

As for all you ESP doubters...!

ART LIGHTING FIXTURE CO. REOPENS

How many people have passed the lighting store on the corner across from Al's Ham and Eggs and wondered to themselves about how it got there, and why it's never open, and quietly continued on their way, content to let the mystery lie?

Well, the store is now open and there's a happy story behind it. The store is under the new management of Victor Canepa who owns El Cerrito Electric. He and his father bought the business from Sam Bushman, who ran it for many years. Mr. Bushman lives upstairs and will continue to live there, at least until the freeway comes through which will be five years from now, at the earliest. All the fixtures are made almost completely by hand - they are hand-soldered, spun and painted - with many tools which are kept in the back. Victor Canepa says it is almost a lost art. Mr. Canepa says that Mr. Bushman comes down once a day for an hour or so and teaches him the various aspects of hand-crafting light fixtures.

Mr. Bushman had a large store in Oakland many years ago. (Mr. Canepa proudly showed a photo.) When the depression came along he lost his lease and the six or so men who were working there were out of work. Then Mr. Bushman moved the business to Point Richmond and brought along all his tools and machines. He continued to make the fixtures himself, intending someday when the economy recovered to move to a bigger location. Somehow that never came to pass. But when Mr. Bushman's neighbors needed a lighting fixture they always knew to come to him and he would make one up just the way they wanted.

Mr. Canepa says proudly that if someone comes in and wants a fixture a little different from the one on display, he can just go in back and change it. He says that the large lighting companies don't even do that for you and they charge more for their lights.

So a fruitful partnership is being forged between youth and age in that little on the corner of Tewksbury Avenue. Drop in and see for yourself!

NEWS FROM CUB SCOUT PACK 135

The cubs are getting ready for another fun year of events, picnics, games, wrestling, tours, fishing, carnivals, Scout-O-Rama, etc. Any boys interested in joining should be 8 years old or in the 3rd grade. The Back-To-Scouting Night is Tuesday, Sept. 25, 1975, at 7:30 p.m. sharp at the Washington School Auditorium. All parents should accompany their boys. Registration forms are in the school and all 3rd graders should have them. Anyone who doesn't can contact me, Beverly Price, at 232-2260.

I also now have Blue Birds forming and we need two more little girls to join. They should be in the 3rd, 2nd or 1st grade. It's $5.00 to join for one year and $1.60 for dues for Oct. thru Dec. We will meet at my house every Weds for one hour at 2 p.m. and will be starting Oct. 1, 1975.

WEST SIDE IMPROVEMENT CLUB TO HOST BENEFIT

The Women's West Side Improvement Club will host a salad bar luncheon Tuesday October 7, from 12-1:30 at the Parish Hall of the Catholic Church. Also, the club will be holding a bake sale and a white elephant sale at that time. Donation: $2.00.

Saturday, September 7, dawned clear and bright and warm. Around 10:00 residents were treated to the sight of Terry Winn, Pat Galton, Kimberly Shaff, Gary Brown, Jill Sacherman, Jack Macander, and little Kylie Winn trying to get into Terry's store, the Gingham Goose. Kylie had lost the keys! They tried everything - picking the lock, taking the door of the hinges with a meat cleaver, finally opening the transom and hoisting Gary Brown up and over. An hour later everyone left, happy and satisfied that the challenge had been met.

Later the same day, local citizens were startled to hear the horns of about 10 cars and the scream of a loud police whistle along Park Place. The wedding party of Jack Earl and Danielle Blount was on its way to the reception and had taken a turn through the Point. Shoppers and eaters left the stores and ran to the sidewalk. Bobby Reed, owner of the Pool Hall, was leading the procession on his motorcycle and dashing brought the parade to a halt with his police whistle. The beautiful bride and handsome groom emerged from their limousine to receive the well-wishers. After holding up traffic for five minutes, Bobby blew the whistle to start again and almost got run over by Danielle's father making a U-turn as Bobby headed up Washington. A good time was had by all. Danielle, who has been working at Central Pool hall, is celebrating the happy event by quitting her job, and she will be greatly missed by the patrons of that establishment.

Local Assemblyman Jack Knox was host to a party for presidential hopeful Fred Harris labor day morning at his home on Bishop Avenue.

Though the weather was somewhat chilly and overcast, a good crowd turned up, including many local politicians, kibitzers and neighbors. Congressman George Miller shook hands all around, and also present were Bob Campbell Millie Allaire, Robert Reed (of underground gourmet fame), Nic Walker, Miller's Administrative Assistant, political honcho Bert Coffey, the Tripps, Doug Corbin of Civic Group fame, Hans and Lore Shaper and Mary Jamison, among others. Coffee warmed everyone up and various melons were served.

Fred Harris is a former Senator from Oklahoma and could best be described as a populist democrat. He was on the last leg of a campaign journey across the country in a camper caravan. His wife, LaDonna Harris was not with him because she is the full-time director of a group called Americans for Indian Opportunity. She is a full-blooded Comanche Indian.

Harris's speech was a pleasure first of all because it brought back memories of great political speech-making, which seems to be a lost art these days. Some of the points he touched on were:

"People are smart enough to govern themselves. We shouldn't tax ourselves to prop up governments with no principles all over the world."

Harris spoke at length about tax loopholes and Ford's recent proposal to give more loopholes to large corporations.

"These people are always talking about how we should support our country. We ought to sue Nelson Rockefeller and Ronald Reagan for non-support."

He said the U.S. should have a massive jobs program and bring down the interest rate by legislation if necessary. Harris said he is the only candidate putting the basic issues in broad perspective.

"There is a need for a fairer distribution of wealth and power in this country. Too few of the people have too much of the money and power," he said.

Harris said that because he represents a Southern populism, he is a candidate attractive to George Wallacites and McGovernites alike.

"We don't have to have permanent friends; we can have temporary allies," he said.

Our friend Donna Roselius passes this press release on to us:

"The extraordinary Charles Moffett Family jazz ensemble--consisting of father Charles Moffett, former Ornette Coleman Trio percussionist, his four sons and bassist Patrick McCarthy--has just released its first album.

"Titled "Volume I - The Charles Moffett Family," tracks are "Wishbone Suite," "Jubilee," "Gypsy Lady," and "Peace on My Mind," all composed by Moffett sons Mondre, Charles Jr. and Codaryl. Youngest of the group is eight-year old Charnett on bass and trumpet.

The group appears at the Oakland Coliseum on Saturday, September 20 with the Isley Brothers and Ramsey Lewis. They will make their second tour of Japan and other Asian countries in November and will tour U.S. colleges in the spring.

For bookings or record albums, contact manager Donna Roselius, 212 Bishop Ave., Pt. Richmond, CA 94801 or phone 415/233-4999."

Judith Shubin

I was intrigued recently by a flier sent out by "Growth and Learning Catalysts, Inc.", a psychological counseling group located at 3200 Barrett Ave. (phone: 233-4471). The flier was for three new fall courses starting late September/early October. The first is "How to Increase Your Productivity with selective concentration", the second is called "Growth Groups for Women" and it says "This course deals with identity, assertiveness, careers, creativity, life styles, roles/expectations, openness and aging." The third is called "Single Again?" You can guess what that's about.

A couple of people I know took a course called "Self Hypnosis" put on by this group last year, and thought it was worth their time and money.

Also I was amused by the titles the psychologists give themselves - "facilitators". A pleasant former minister by the name of Asa Butterfield is the head honcho facilitator. Asa wanders into Judges and Spares occasionally, where I run into him and ask him for free advice. I am very grateful to have such a relationship with a shrink at this time in my life, having at one time paid exorbitant sums for having my questions thrown back at me by a highly paid professional. Now I can have my questions thrown back at me for free.

All joking aside, joining groups like this is often a good way to get out of your rut and meet some people and get your self-improvement program off the ground. I also like Asa because he knows a lot about ESP and that sort of thing.

- THE COVER -

The man on the cover is known to local kids as "Big Daddy" but actually his real name is Jack Z. Egoian. He's 56 years old and has been in Richmond since 1945.

Jack was born in Fresno California, where he says all the Armenians are born. He fought with the Fifth Army in England Africa, and Italy, serving as a combat medic for three years.

After the war Jack came back to California where he remained a bachelor until the ripe old age of 39. "Then I met a pretty Irish girl from Kansas, and that was it," he says. He married his sweetheart Mary and they have been inseparable ever since.

The Egoians run a rest home - the "Balwin Manor" in Richmond. They have three sons, who also help out around the rest home, and one grandchild. Their hobbies are entertaining people and traveling. They just got back from a trip to Canada.

Jack has been working at the Spot for 17 years and says he real loves Point Richmond. He thinks the Point is going to grow but the we need some walking policemen on the beat out here.

One of Jacks hobbies is chasing kids out of the Spot when he thinks they are going to steal the candy bars. This is high drama, with the kids dispersing in all directions, and running down the street while Jack puts on his meanest looks.

Jack changed his image a few years ago when he started wearing double knit suits in smart patterns and colors. He attributes this change to his wife, who he says likes to dress him like her old boyfriend! But you can see Jack is pleased.

We are pleased that someone this nice has chosen to stay in the Point for so many years. We hope you will be around many more!

WHAT ARE YOU DOING WITH THE REST OF YOUR LIFE?

by Reta Hall

"The great use of life is to spend it for something that will outlast it! Williams James explained that only things done for other people have any value in the life activities of a person. By sharing time, love and talents many people enrich their own lives through enriching the lives of others.

Lifing in Point Richmond presents great opportunities for service in the area. Willing, living drivers are needed to deliver hot noon day dinners to homebound persons through the Meals on Wheels Program which is led by Mrs. Sheila Fostiak. Friendly outgoing "Friendly Visitors" are needed to visit shut-ins to brighten their hours. Arts and crafts instructors are desparately needed by the new Synthess Program for the handicapped adults at 169 Sixth Street, Richmond. Teachers to help women embroider simple stitches, mend clothing by hand, or fix their hair more attractively are needed. Teachers to help men do simple wood carving, leather tooling, or learn new games are needed. Entertainers on a one time or on-going basis are needed.

Whatever skills you have developed and would share with other people are sincerely needed by many of your less advantaged neighbors. Whatever time and love you have to share can be happily invested in helping others. Homebound persons can do on-going projects such as knitting bed socks and making lap-ropes for wheel chair patients.

WHAT ARE YOU DOING WITH THE REST OF YOUR LIFE might be made richer for you if you can share yourselves with others. If interested, please call William Hall, Reta Hall or Pamela Ford at the Retired Senior Volunteer Office, 233-7060 ext.3481 or come by the office on week-days 8 to 5 p.m., 3431 Macdonald Ave., Richmond.

CITY HALL notes

After reporting city hall news for awhile one gradually learns where one can pick up the most interesting tidbits of information. One is by attending council study sessions which usually start at 6 p.m. the evening of the council meetings. Members of the press receive a "press kit" which contains all the background information which the councilmen get. Included is a list of the subjects which will be under discussion at the study sessions. However, even the study kit does not always indicate the importance of the subjects under discussion

COMPLAINTS ABOUT THE POLICE

Such was the case Monday night at the Public Safety Committee meeting, when Mr. Michael Creed, manager of an apartment house at 248 15th Street (15th & Macdonald) appeared before the committee with some rather heavy complaints about the police.

Before going into Mr. Creed's substantial complaints, let me digress into an object lesson about how sensitive issues are sometimes handled by the Richmond City Council. Mr. Creed had appeared before Council August 5 with his complaints and it had apparently been held over pending investigation (this reporter missed that meeting). The Monday (Sept. 8) morning before the council meeting Mr. Creed was telephoned by one of the councilmen and informed that his item was to be on the agenda that evening. "If I had been out of town I would have known nothing about it on such short notice," he said. At 5 p.m. before the 6:45 study session he was handed the police investigation response to his complaints (which had been prepared August 20). The response essentially called Mr. Creed a liar. However, Mr. Creed was armed with a petition with 74 signatures of his immediate neighbors on it and a good bunch of them were in the audience at the meeting later. So councilmen Wagerman, Campbell, Allen and Nelson were hard pressed to dismiss Mr. Creed lightly and the matter was referred for further investigation until the council meeting of the 15th.

What were Mr. Creed's complaints? We print them here in full because we think it is high time something is done about the behaviour of the police in this town.

"My name is Michael Creed. I manage the 'Goin INN Apt's' dba. at 248-15th St., Richmond, CA. I seek better law enforcement for the residents who live in my dwelling.

"On the 2nd day of May, 1975 I phoned the Richmond Police Department. A robbery was in progress in one of my apartments. The burglars were actively looting at the time. It took the police one hour and eighteen minutes to arrive at the scene. Needless to say the suspects got away.

"Within the period from February, 1975 to the present our homes have experienced four firebombings, two armed robberies, a series of vandalistic acts, numerous violent assaults with deadly weapons, attacks with caustic chemicals, open solicitations of narcotics and other open violations of the law.

"I have contacted the police on every incident when it occurred. Nothing was done. When I became insistent that the law be upheld, I became the target of police mimicry. As time went on the police refused to answer my calls. I have sent victims to the police station to acquire files to make their claims. To my amazement many of the crimes had never been reported. No records exist today. It suggests how the records of criminal activity in our city have been suppressed.

"I HAD REPORTED ILLEGAL WIRETAPPING ON PERSONAL CONVERSATIONS in our apartment buildings. The police did almost nothing. As a result of my activity I have been constantly threatened with violent and physical harm. I have been shot at trying to protect my property against these lawless elements.

"I can not rely on the present police force for adequate protection. I bought and carried a 44 Magnum carbine. A car accident occurred one day about 50 feet from my apartments. Recognizing the seriousness of the incident I went to the scene of the accident and administered first aid. I rested my gun while I aided the injured. The police finally came as I was assisting a nurse in preventing one of the more seriously injured victims from going into a state of shock. Once that was done the police questioned me for possessing a loaded firearm within the city limits. I would gladly give up carrying the gun if the police will do the job the taxpayers pay them to do.

"Many of the people of my apartments are living in a 'state of terror.' They have been the target of lawbreakers who have constantly threatened them with physical violence. These poor people have no place to go. They have pleaded with me to appeal their cause before the city council. They desire honest and decent police protection. Protection that will uphold the laws of the city, state, and country. Our civilization is a small distance away from the jungle. If the laws of our society are not enforced or up-held can we even hope to have a future. That is the purpose of my presentation."

The response of the police was contained in a memo dated Aug. 20. The memo stated in part "This total time expenditure (102 hours and 9 minutes of police time for the month of July) represents the most officer time of any sector within the city... This information tends to support Mr. Creed's claim that the area is a high crime rate area; however, it refutes his claim of lack of response, lack of concern, and inadequate protection by the Police Department."

The memo went on to explain that shortly after Mr. Creed called to report that he had the burglars at bay, there was another report of gunshots in the area, to which officers responded, thinking that it was part of the same incident. The memo continues to explain away the other nine incidents listed, and concludes by saying "some of the incidents referred to by Mr. Creed, such as firebombing and wiretapping, have apparently never been reported to this department. It is inconceivable that a crime of such a nature would not be recorded if reported. It is unfortunate that Mr. Creed cannot rely on this department for adequate protection; however, it appears that Mr. Creed is actually receiving a greater amount of protection than he realizes. As always, this department has and will continue to strive to offer the most professional police service possible to all citizens of the City of Richmond."

(COMPLAINTS ABOUT POLICE, ct'd)

At the committee meeting, Creed charged that the police were in conspiracy with the burglars. He said that the apartment of a friend had been robbed and the stolen items were reported to police and insurance agent and to no one else. The next day, he said, a 14-year-old boy in the next apartment house revealed in conversation a detailed knowledge of the stolen items. Following up on this Creed set up a few phone calls designed to check if his lines were tapped and came to the conclusion that they were. Investigating farther, he said he found a bank of 15 telephones in the next apartment that were tapped into his lines and those of his neighbors. "How do you know they were taps?" councilmen asked him. "I had my neighbor pick up his phone and make a call, and it came in over the telephone bank," he said. However, he said when he requested police to come and confiscate the phones they refused to do so. Finally he turned the phones over to the telephone company. The police response to the burglaries was so slow that the thieves had no trouble getting away. "Either there is a conspiracy or they are incredibly inefficient," he said. Creed says he is going to the grand jury for an investigation.

What kinds of experiences have other Richmonders had at the hands of our local police?

Earlier this summer, on a hot Friday night, a group of youths gathered to cruise the main up and down Macdonald avenue. Now this kind of activity is not the most attractive thing young people can do but it is a fact of life in most towns. Somewhere along the middle of the evening the youths allegedly gathered in one spot and police approached them. Someone shouted a name and threw a rock. The police charged. Larry Titus, who works at the pool hall, was in the crowd at the time. He said that police were in the process of arresting one member of the crowd and had him on the ground and were clubbing him, when his 5'2" girlfriend screamed for them to stop. They turned around and hit her in the mouth. The blood started flowing immediately. Titus says that was when the rock was thrown and the names called. The police charged in groups of five, with their clubs swinging, and beat the youths until they could not get up off the ground. Then other groups of two policemen came along and handcuffed the youths. This report by Titus was confirmed by other Point Richmond citizens who had relatives or friends at the scene.

Shortly afterwards, on the night of the Richmond city birthday dinner, this reporter stopped at the Baltic and saw police chief Garfield and Lt. Wood, his right-hand man, enjoying an after-dinner drink. I mentioned to them that I had heard their men had beat some kids senseless.

"That's a pretty strong thing to say," Wood replied.

"That's what I heard," I said.

"Well, if they attack our guys, they've got to expect to get hurt," he said. "They're big boys."

"Did any of the police go to the hospital?" I asked.

"No," he muttered. "But we have some good charges against the kids. They're big boys now."

This reporter may not be representative of the Point Richmond population, but it seems that clubbing people and action of that sort may not be the best way to deal with the population of the town, even the teenagers. Could this be the result of the recent SWAT (FBI) training our police received? Matters of police brutality are hard to prove - certainly beyond the resources of this reporter. We can merely repeat the accumulation of all we have heard.

Monday evening at city council was the scene of still another complaint, by a Mr. Henderson who lives in Parchester Village and about 15 of his neighbors. Mr. Henderson stated that vandals broke some of his windows and the police took one hour and 45 minutes to respond. "Why don't you send out black officers?" he asked. "The officers you send out are kids - they are more scared than the residents. At least if they were black they would know how to handle the situation. Then the courts turn them loose. If this keeps up we will have to arm ourselves and protect ourselves any way we can." The council promised Mr. Henderson an investigation. Councilman Dick Nelson reiterated his idea, expressed many months ago, that the parents of vandals be fined a stiff fine by the courts.

Other incidents in the Point have occurred. For a couple of months this summer, police allegedly were harassing the youth at the community center. The youths came to this reporter and asked what could be done about it. They said the police would charge in and make them put their hands on the wall and frisk them and check their identification. One of the main targets appeared to be a kid known in the Point as Gus. Gus is black and the only black kid in the group of regulars at the center. Gus showed this reporter his knuckles which were swollen to twice normal size and bruises on his wrists from handcuffs; injuries which apparently happened after police had taken him to the station for booking on suspicion of burglary (charges which were later dropped.).

The youth were advised by this reporter to begin keeping a list of the dates, times, names of youth checked and if possible, police badge numbers; and try to accumulate this information over a month or a few weeks, so that they would have some proof for their accusations, which could be presented to the community for action. However, shortly after that, the alleged harassment stopped.

(At the same time, a number of local citizens have come to this reporter with complaints about rip-offs, claiming that youths and corner boys stand and watch citizens come and go and wait for them to leave their residences so that burglaries occur. These citizens say they are ready to form a vigilante group. However, this reporter has no evidence at this time to support the contention that either the youths or the corner boys are involved in robberies).

It is inconceivable to this reporter that the police would be harassing the youths at the community center when people are dropping like flies from heroin overdoses in the Todd Hotel.

An adult, who happens to be a black man and is familiar with the goings-on of the youth in Richmond, recently came to this reporter requesting support for the formation of a police review commission because of the treatment of teenagers in Richmond.

What good would a police review commission do? City council appoints the police chief. City Council would also appoint a police review commission. It would just as likely as not turn out to be another whitewash commission. Richmond citizen commissions are not noted for their fearlessness. And then where would the citizens go for their complaints? The council could refer everything to the police review commission and bury it there instead of whitewashing it on the council committees. That is in part how the Community Development Commission is turning out. If councilmen don't want to make a decision on something they keep referring it back to a commission until the issue is dead and the citizens involved have given up going to meetings.

Citizens can't expect much from the main daily newspaper which is not noted for its crusading reform journalism.

Another alternative is to have an elected Police Chief. This would take a local ballot initiative. Then if the citizens didn't like what was going on they could get rid of the chief every two years. Then there might be some one come along who could get elected and really clean things up. Of course, there is always the possibility of corrupt election practices, even in the election of a police chief. However that's the chance we take in every election.

Lt. Wood seemed visibly upset at the Council meeting Monday night when I spoke to him outside the council chambers. He said that the police department was going to start the police on beats as of January this year, instead of teams, something Point Richmond citizens have been requesting for some time. A few months ago the chief said he was reluctant to do this because of the extreme youth and inexperience of the police force (a two-year man is a veteran on our force).

We've been hearing for many months that the police force is young and inexperienced; that Richmond can't hold its officers- the good ones leave. We don't think being young is a good enough excuse anymore. That's like forgiving teenagers for being vandals. We think it is time for a full investigation. We are tired of hearing rumors of payoffs, burglary rings, dope rings, organized crime coming from the docks and North Richmond - the part of North Richmond the city refuses to annex, because of its connections with big business out there. If it is necessary to raise the police salaries and fire all the kids and hire old men away from other cities, let's do it. Let's do whatever's necessary for the police to clean up their act.

BICYCLE PATHS TO BE CONSIDERED

We were down on the beach the other day, soaking up some September sun, when we spied Jerry Rasmussen of the Planning Department, wheeling his bike down to a bench and taking out his sack lunch. So naturally we wandered up and asked him if he always biked out to Keller's beach for lunch.

"Not as often as I'd like," he replied. "I'm doing a study for the Planning department on bicycle paths. We expect to get about $10,000 this year and next out of gas taxes to build bicycle and pedestrian paths."

Jerry said he had just ridden (rode? rided?) down Cutting from 10th street and thought that a bike path might be put in on the south side, past the boatworks so that kids who wanted to get to Keller's wouldn't have to ride on highway 17 as they do now. I agreed with him, having seen groups of kids seemingly bent on suicide dashing across the highway to get to the Plunge or beach and wheeling around in the street, playing chicken with the oncoming traffic.

He talked for a while about the problems of putting in bicycle access to the Point Molate area. Presently the only access is on the freeway and there is no shoulder to speak of to ride a bike on. Part of a bicycle path may have to be cantilevered, he said, and the city would like to put up a concrete barrier, as they have in the middle of Hoffman freeway. The trouble with that is it costs a lot of money. Rasmussen said the state had plans for awhile to close off one lane of the San Rafael bridge for two-way bike traffic, but that had been postponed indefinitely.

Decisions on all this will not be made for several months, and the matter will have to come before the Planning Commission and City Council. In the meantime, nothing ever happens without a little citizen input or support, so if you are interested, you can obtain a copy of the report from City Hall, or by calling 232-1212.

only take salmon with steel nets, which is illegal in the U.S., but also bottom fish and most everything else which is edible.

The basic problem is - yes, you guessed it - the government. There aren't any effective laws to govern the taking of fish illegally by foreigners.

To the Editor:

How many times in American history has danger loomed? How many times have we as Americans ignored the warning and been sorry afterwards?

We who are fishermen are in a crisis. We who like to fish the Pacific coast or ocean now have to compete with Russian fishing trawlers.

We who are fish eaters suffer from those trawlers. They not

This is the problem: our food these days comes more and more from the oceans. What comes to mind is this: are we as Americans going to pay taxes to have other countries come over off our shores to take food from our mouths? How many times must we, the people, get screwed because our government is sitting back on its ass and not doing what is needed?

Commercial and sport fishermen both suffer. As the price of seafood goes up the American people suffer. We as taxpayers are in reality paying the Russians to take our resources. - our bread and butter and in many cases our livelihood. I know politics is a dirty word but that's what it is going to take to get the Russians out of our bank accounts.

The second problem is this: since the Russians are fishing our coastal waters and quite often are inside the territorial waters, how long will it be before they have the guts to come in and strip the bay of fish with their nets?

In order to change what is happening, we the people must put pressure on Congress to pass laws to cover what's happening. Also it may be a good idea to extend territorial waters as most outraged countries in South America are doing.

The East coast is plagued by Japanese fishing vessels.

SENATE BILL ONE.

the revised federal criminal code

by Bill Copenhagen

The title is very easy to remember. It is is passed there will be a lot of folks around who will wish they had never heard of it. The bill was drawn up, as far as I can ascertain, by the mediocre authoritarians of the Mitchell-Nixon-Agnew clique, as an adjunct to the law and order campaign. Pardon my uncertainty as to details, but in the months since I became aware of this abomination I haven't seen any of the actual wording. This work in its original form covers hundreds of pages with the most obscure legalese. According to some it is overcomplicated and ambiguous in many respects, and it seems that unless you happen to be high-up in the D.C. Government circles its almost impossible to ob 'n a copy.

There are four points included in this bill of which I am certain.

1. It calls for the arrest and incarceration of persons belonging to organizations "dedicated to the overthrow of the government". Guilt by association is just the beginning. Merely voicing a dissenting opinion would become dangerous.

2. It establishes mandatory death sentences for crimes such as kidnapping and hijacking (aircraft), whether or not any injury takes place as a result. To be fair, only crimes causing death should be punishable by death.

3. Freedom of the press is endangered by rules lifting legal protection from heretofore confidential news sources. Any reporter could be jailed for publishing deliberately leaked "classified" material or refusing to finger his connections.

4. Federal penalties for misdemeanor possession of "dangerous" drugs and herbs are increased beyond reason. Incredible prison terms plus astronomical fines, aimed at creating financial bondage are set.

The scary part is that this madness is even considered. But there seems to be an inexplicable enthusiasm for S.1 in our "liberal" national legislature. The strongest language that I've so far heard against it (Senator Birch Byh) only advocated slight modifications. I would have expected a storm of incredulous outrage at least. If they put this one over on us its going to be a rerun of cold war McCarthyism with modern improvements and a new twist. Will our government, out of fear and confusion, attempt to emulate the thought police tactics of totalitarian terror regimes like the U.S.S.R. and Iran? I realize this may sound like fantasy to many but the potential for serious abuses is real as the bill is now written, and it angers me to see how few even know of its existence.

To maintain our relatively free state and especially to perfect it we must exercise our collective political power. But this must be done with care and discretion, the prime objective being the freedom of the individual, as much as living in a congested civilized society allows. It is an easy thing to convert a classic democracy into a constitutional tyranny, by employing the principle of majority rule to extremes. For example, a particular social class, ethnic group or what-have-you can, by out-numbering or voting in collusion with other blocs, legally oppress the opposition. In that way, instead of strengthening the nation as a whole by supporting each individual, we cause fragmentation and weaken the total structure.

There is no inherent power in truth and high principle. It's not enough to believe in democracy and expect it to sustain itself. Witness the bizzare and brutal police states which seem to thrive everywhere. If each citizen doesn't occasionally make a physical effort to reinforce his rights he will not long enjoy them.

Conversely, by allowing government to make decisions with or without, but especially without, public consent, with the misguided intent of rendering life completely safe and predictable, protecting us from ourselves and bestowing upon the lucky survivors the benefits of an "orderly" society, we are similarly derelict. For it it were possible to accomplish the project we would have a "utopia" populated by a race of automatons.

I feel the most important of our rights are those which allow freedom of information and expression of thought. We gain from the comparison of new ideas, both foolish and useful, to established practices. One can't uphold a strong argument or government if one does not know the strengths or and weaknesses of the alternatives. Much benefit may be had from constructive criticism if the need for improvement is recognized.

The point is, when our congressmen and senators take it upon themselves, whether out of a misdirected sense of duty, or baser motivations, to punish those who criticize or attempt to change society, they violate the principles they claim to be in defense of. Power corrupts and all administrations when they become bloated with this affliction tend to see themselves as the be-all and end-all, a sacred entity. S1 would make this possible. Of course, there won't be any great change overnight. Our stogy bureaucracy isn't capable of making quick policy revamps, as it is obviously incapable of adapting to our day by day situations. But it is the gradual changes that most of us are blind to, or we would not be locked into our current self-destructive course.

Some of you may wish to write to your representatives. Some work is being done by the A.C.L.U. (American Civil Liberties Union), but it is most effective to attack on many fronts as possible.

Sponsors of the bill are: Senator McClellan (D.Ark), Senator Hruska (R.Neb.). They can be reached along with Senators Tunney and Cranston at Senate Office Building, Washington, D.C. 20510. Cong. Miller (7th Dist.) and Dellums (8th Dist.) may be reached at the House of Representatives, Washington, D.C. 20515.

AN INTERESTING NUMBER

Here's an interesting number - 142857. There are six digits, no zeros, threes, sixes, or nines, and no digit is repeated. Multiply the number by two and the sum still contains the same six digits. Multiply it by three, four, five, or six, and you will find that each new sum contains the same six digits. Each new sum, while its first and last digits are different from the first and last digit of the original number, maintains the same order of succession; for example, two always follows four and always precedes eight.

But watch our for a surprise when you multiply the original number by seven!

big plans for point park

East Bay Regional Park District Directors have opted for a six-phase $1,981,200 lagoon development project at Richmond's George Miller, Jr. Memorial Shoreline complete with an offshore windmill pump in deference to energy and environmental crises.

There will be a seventh phase whose cost is undetermined now, EBRPD General Manager Richard C. Trudeau said, and Phase Six calls for a 3.75 acre fishing groin in the bay which will cost an estimated $386,500.

Trudeau estimated that actual construction work will begin in April, 1976 but cautioned that an Environmental Impact Report, public hearings and reviews by the public agencies concerned must precede it. He forecast that as the various phases of the project are completed, EBRPD might become eligible for additional federal grants or state moneys. It is urgent that construction begin soon, Trudeau added since the pending $250,000 in U.S. Land and Water Conservation grant funds must be expended before October, 1977.

This is the six-phase "flow chart" for the complicated bay-shore project:

PHASE II--This will cost an estimated $500,000 and will include such things as removing two feet of topsoil totaling about 40,000 cubic yards from the Point Richmond flatland to make way for 100,000 cubic yards of Santa Fe Railway "dredge spoils"; $40,000 for mounding 10,000 cubic yards of earth; $74,000 for 2400 feet of 24 and 48-inch culverts; $60,000 for four acres of irrigated meadows; $30,000 for six acres of tree planting and irrigation; $25,000 for 2500 feet of bicycle paths; $17,500 for 50 parking stalls; and $10,000 for a 20-unit picnic development.

PHASE III--A spiral staired pedestrian overpass together with engineering, contingencies, etc., will cost $200,000, but Crutcher pointed out that by eliminating the necessity for building a vehicular overpass will save some $60,000. Vehicles can reach areas west of the Santa Fe tracks via another route.

PHASE IV--This is the six-acre lagoon phase estimated to cost $253,000. Excavation and mounding totaling 55,000 cubic yards is tabbed at $110,000; the windmill about $20,000; 1000 feet of bulkheads, $15,000; and sand and gravel, $14,000.

PHASE V--This includes demolition work, drainage structures and site development and will cost an estimated $641,700. Items called for include 2500 feet of 24-inch culvert, $50,000; finish grading and mounding, on 12.5 acres $50,000; 6,000 feet of bicycle paths, $60,000; 5,000 feet of gravel paths, $25,000; 150-stall parking, $52,500; two toilet structures, $60,000; 50-unit picnic development, $25,000; and water mains, $24,000.

PHASE VI--This is the 3.75 acre fishing groin to cost an estimated $386,500. Cost items include 1900 feet of rip rap, $152,000; 25,000 cubic yards of fill, $137,500; and trees, paths, etc. $35,000.

The seventh phase, Trudeau said will consist of acquisition of additional hills lands besides Nicholl Knob which EBRPD already owns plus planned ceding by the City of Richmond of its popular 1.2-acre Keller's Beach and certain underwater tidal lots and about another acre of land east of Garrard Boulevard consisting of a marksmanship range and two appurtenant buildings. This area, Trudeau said, might be used for a meadow picnic site and day camping. Additional hill areas, if acquired, would require erosion control and planting of grass.

Crutcher explained that the intake for the lagoon would extend about 400 feet out into the bay where it could pick up pure and cold water and avoid the brackish surface waters that come down from the delta.

THE WINDMILL

"The windmill--much larger than the kind you are familiar with on farms--would pump constantly and, if need be, an auxiliary electric pump could help out to effect a complete change of water in the four-foot-deep lagoon every 48 hours," Crutcher explained.

"It would be situated about 100 feet out in the bay.

"With the use of colder bay water and a 48-hour circulating cycle, we would avoid algae build-up or 'bloom' and get rid of the lagoon waters before temperatures built up."

Director Mary Jeffereds, Berkeley, was concerned that a spiral staircase pedestrian overpass could not be used by handicapped persons. She suggested a ramp.

Some two weeks ago, EBRPD directors and Trudeau were on the verge of euphoria when it appeared that Oakland's Pt. Potrero Properties might excavate the lagoon cost-free in mitigation for all alleged illegal filling of the bay at its "Brickyard Cove" development. The original concept all had agreed, called for a natural tidal action lagoon. But when Santa Fe learned that the lagoon would, necessarily, have to be excavated below sea level to provide the necessary tidal flow, it balked. Excavating below sea level might undermine its main line tracts.

EBRPD then came up with the concept of pumping the bay waters into the lagoon.

But Col. H. A. Flertzheim, Jr. of the Army Engineers and Asst. U.S. Atty. Charles M. O'Connor who is prosecuting the civil case against Pt. Potrero Properties vetoed that. It violated the mitigation concept involving a true extension of the bay through tidal flow.

Only U.S. District Judge Lloyd Burke could overturn their decisions now and restore the EBRPD's unexpected "bonanza."

A resourceful man, Trudeau was already at work trying to convince the federal government that the $250,000 or so worth of mitigation work which Pt. Potrero Properties might do could be used as local "matching funds" for the $250,000 Land and Water Conservation Fund Grant.

Working against deadlines, Trudeau, Crutcher and others tried to tie the complicated financial package together but Flertzheim and O'Connor, although sympathetic ruled against the plan.

"When I read my Board notes," Dr. Howard Cogswell, Hayward, president of the Board, remarked, they read almost like a 1 movie scenario. We were on the verge of success. Then...bitter defeat."

"Had everything gone as we had hoped it might," the unquenchable Trudeau remarked, "the District could have saved a maximum of some $400,000...It seemed to me that this was worth the effort that we might put into it and that the old saying 'nothing ventured, nothing gained' was true here.

"We have fired our best shot... unfortunately, this did not work but it does not mean that we are not moving ahead on the project."

The Board approved an allocation of $15,000 to pay the engineering firm of Bissell and Karn, San Leandro, to prepare the necessary Environmental Impact Report.

NEIGHBORHOOD COUNCIL MEETS

A neighborhood council meeting was held in the evening of September 9 at the community center. About 19 people showed up to discuss prospective zoning changes. Tom Butt chaired the meeting and Jerry Rasmussen of the Planning Department was present. Bill Dennis, who has a dispute with his neighbor Mr. Murray about erecting a house in front of his view, explained his position. All agreed that it was time something be done about local zoning.

The group finally passed a resolution in favor of zoning the Point a Special Additive District so that anything that required a building permit or which would alter the physical or aesthetic appearance of a house would be put on a Planning Commission agenda and thus would be subject to public input. They rejected the idea of Controlled Development Zoning, fearing that would open the door to apartment buildings on the bay side of the hill.

BOOKS AND MORE ABOUT ENGLAND
By Carol Bold
West Side Branch Library

West Side has a new batch of paperbacks for adults and children. It may be enlightening for patrons to know that they get here because I shop for the books at warehouse "stores". Suggestions from you are welcome for future buying trips.

The Richmond Public Library budget pie has a small slice allotted for the purchase of branch books, with some of the money reserved for paperbacks. Armed with an order form, the branch librarians, library assistants, and supervisor, Brenda Motomura, drive on a prearranged morning in a City car to the warehouse we have chosen. They don't show--the-dirt washables and most-comfortable-on-cement-floors shoes are vital attire.

Our first stop is always in the area assigned to best sellers when we buy adult books. In our heads we carry lists of types of books liked by our patrons, best sellers, and the books already on our shelves. Buying trips have been planned throughout the fiscal year; so let me know what you would like purchased. It is your money.

I wrote for the previous Point Counterpoint what turned out to be sort of a financial statement about my trip to England this summer. If my further comments here need clarification, please refer to the September 1 issue.

"Do you live on the left side of the map?" "Yes," I explained, "California is on the Pacific Coast side of the United States." We learned not to be smug in thinking the whole world agrees that California and San Francisco are the center of the universe.

Service stations in England have no facilities for washing windshields, even if the car owner will do it himself. In our case, "herself" stored a jug of water in the "boot" and did her best to keep vision clear from the car windows with moderate success.

We thought all the light globes in our rooms were burned out until we discovered switches at the floor plugs.

Brown and white sugar in rather large crystals appeared regularly on restaurant tables to be used for whatever reason one uses sugar. The brown seemed to be the popular choice for coffee and tea.

Some of the drawings done by Pt. Richmond children this summer at West Side under Dan Robertson's supervision are on display here.
